The Gaspé Peninsula (Gaspésie), is located on the eastern tip of the province of Quebec, north of New Brunswick. It is mostly a coastal region surrounded by the St. Lawrence estuary and gulf as well as by the Bay of Chaleur. The Gaspé Peninsula is 560 km from Montreal and 340 km from Quebec City by road.

In the history of tourism in Québec, Gaspésie is identified as one of the first widely known tourist destinations. A long peninsula bathed in the waters of the Estuary and Gulf of St. Lawrence, Gaspésie charms its visitors with its contrasting landscapes ranging from undulating countryside to mountains overlooking the sea.

Gaspésie has a population of slightly over 145,000 residents spread out along the coast and in the Matapédia Valley. The main road, Route 132, which forms a loop of about 900 kilometers (560 miles), is a very unique scenic route. Perce where we are staying for 2 nights represents the most easterly tip of the Gaspésie. This little village is well known to tourists around the world with its unique Rock and the Bonaventure Island.
